BEATTY SAYS FARM SUPERVISION NEEDED

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11.—Study of existing farm management operations in the Winnipeg and Portage la Prairie sections of Manitoba, has convinced E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway that a plan of supervision of that nature is essential to the improvement of farm practices generally and is a necessary adjunct to any federal immigration scheme, if and when that question is again considered by the Dominion authorities.

Mr. Beatty obtained first hand knowledge of conditions in the area mentioned, this week, when he covered the country immediately west of Winnipeg by automobile, accompanied by T. O. P. Herzer, manager of the Colonization Finance Corporation, B. C. Coleman, vice president western lines of the C.P.R., and other company officials.

"I had the advantage," Mr. Beatty said after his trip, "of seeing first hand the farms in the Winnipeg and Portage area under the management plan of the Colonization Finance Corporation and the Canada Colonization Association, and this visit and the discussions with the farm managers, as well as with the farmers, have given me a little keener appreciation of the value of the work being done."

"It has been said, and I am afraid there is some justification for it, that in our colonization and settlement policies of former years there has not been sufficient advance planning, which has led to the efforts being of a somewhat haphazard and uncoordinated character. This, in turn has probably affected the character of our farm operations, and in many cases the lack of supervision has endangered the investment of the farmer as well as that of the companies which have advanced the monies to enable the operations to be carried on."

"A study of the work which has been done during the last four years by the Colonization Finance Corporation has convinced me that there is no more important adjunct to farming operations in the prairie provinces than the establishment of efficient supervisory forces which will co-operate with the farmer in improving farm practices and in correcting errors in farm management which have developed."

"If and when the question of immigration is again considered by the federal authorities," Mr. Beatty concluded, "I am convinced that a plan of supervision is a necessary adjunct to its success. In the meantime, the work which is being done and which no doubt will be gradually extended, is of the utmost value. An increase in the area under supervision has enabled the cost per acre to be substantially reduced and will further reduction is possible if this area is extended. Farm management for many years to come will, I think, be an important factor in the success of farming operations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta."

BELIEVE RECOVERY NO W UNDER WAY

Hon. M. N. Rhodes and prominent bankers endorse Bennett's views.

The prime minister's confident and encouraging statement introducing the new Dominion loan has created a very positive and favorable reaction throughout the country. It's a clear expression of his conviction that recovery is under way, together with the evidence he cited, have stimulated a growing sense of optimism in business circles which is reflected in the subscriptions to the new Dominion loan.

There has also been widespread endorsement of his view that although the road may be long and progress slow, the events of the past six months' experience in Canada, with increasing clarity, that the downward trend has come to a definite stop and that the upward trend is in progress.

Some examples of the comment from prominent Canadians follow. Hon. B. N. Rhodes, minister of finance: "As Canadians we must all share in the sense of encouragement that the prime minister has inspired by his statement regarding the improvement in business conditions throughout the country. It has called our attention to indications of recovery that have become increasingly definite with each succeeding month, and which have been so sustained and consistent that one can no longer doubt their significance."

Mr. Thomas White, vice president of the Bank of Commerce: "I fully concur with the statement of the prime minister as to the upward turn which has taken place; progressively in Canadian business during the past few months. In almost every branch of the country's economic life there has been manifest signs of recovery and escape from the worst of last April."

Professor Gilbert Jackson, director of the courses in commerce and finance of the University of Toronto, and economist of the Bank of Nova Scotia: "The very temperate statement made by the prime minister with reference to recent improvements in Canada is fully validated by fact. Not only have the physical volume of business and production increased since February by 34 per cent, but an even more encouraging point is that the price of basic commodities have risen approximately in the same ratio."

Mr. W. W. Wilson, vice president and general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada: "We are now offered an opportunity to show our confidence in ourselves and in Canada in supporting the government in its essential financial operations. Dominion of Canada bonds are the premier securities available to investors, carrying advantages to investors."

Vacationers are beginning to realize that the time for the time is not long an autumn holiday when the traffic is light upon the highways and the more popular summer resorts are less congested. This is indicated by the number of motor vehicles for road maps and other information directed to the National Parks of Canada of the Department of the Interior, a governmental office at Ottawa, Canada, which supplies information to prospective visitors to that country. While much has been written of autumn in Canada, only by actual experience can one truly appreciate the spirit of the season; words are but empty and cannot adequately describe the thrill of its magic spell.

THRESHING DONE AT HUSSAR

HUSSAR, Oct. 11.—Threshing was completed in this district on Saturday evening, but a few farmers are finishing up their combining. To date the following report is current:

The crop of grain in Hussar elevators was 189,000 bushels of wheat and 3,500 bushels of other grain. In store on Oct. 11, 1933, 284,000 bushels; number bushels shipped 116,000; estimated yield, 300,000 bushels of wheat, this being 50,000 bushels less than original estimate. This loss was caused by grasshoppers. 164,000 bushels have been marketed already. About 25 per cent is No. 1 hard; 55 per cent No. 2 Northern; 10 per cent No. 3 Northern; 25 per cent of this year's crop will be held on the farms. The yield last year was 265,000 bushels of wheat and 3,900 bushels of other grain put through the elevators.

Once again with the arrival of autumn the whole countryside is transformed into a series of gorgeous pictures of vivid coloring. Although the turning of the leaves on the trees and shrubs of the autumn, nature is kind and autumn is born in all its brilliancy. It is all so lovely to the sight of the fall season. The call of the hunter echoes from the woods and the staccato crack of the rifle and the sound of the shot gun ring out through the clear air. Even the small animals respond to the urge of the season and may be seen scurrying here and there storing up food supplies for the coming winter. The natural beauty of fall scenery hurries to take advantage of the season before it slips the splendor of the trees in their mantles of gold and crimson will be gone, not to return until another year has passed. The imagination of the poet is stirred by the rapidly changing season and the philosopher becomes inspired with new thoughts to the advent of the fall season. The northland is calling and Canada with its vast recreational attractions invites the visitor from other lands to participate in the activities of the season. The national and provincial parks are never more beautiful than in the fall of the year when the vibrant fall of nature bestows upon them the irresistible charm of autumn.

LOCAL NOTES

The silver cup won by the Bassano Junior baseball team on display in Jakey Bulmer's store. The local seniors won the brigantine league championship the past season. The cup was presented at a banquet recently held in Brooks for the junior and intermediate champions. Much credit for the junior's excellent record goes to Lloyd Leonard, who coached the boys along and was their chief advisor and director during the season.

Mrs. Jas. Johnston was a weekend visitor to Calgary, calling on her daughter, Mrs. Alva Johnson.

Lloyd Leonard, printer on the Chitcock Advance, was home for the holiday week-end.

Mrs. W. J. Smith, with baby daughter, left Wednesday evening for Vernon, B. C., to visit for a couple of weeks with her parents.

A McKee received a cablegram last week-end advising him of the death of his father in Scotland.

Miss Jessie Hawthorn has resigned her position on the Bassano Hospital staff. She left today, Thursday, to visit with her brother in Medicine Hat.

A party of local tennis players visited the Drumheller tennis club last Sunday. Bassano players fared very badly, losing every match they played, ten in all. R. Donaldson, L. S. Whitehorn and H. Brown played hard-fought singles matches that all went three sets, but the other matches were one-sided.

Miss Jean Plumer, who is teaching near Hussar, was home for the Thanksgiving holiday.

John Hesketh, new proprietor of the City Meat Market, is making some changes in his shop. The counter has been changed around, a partition erected at the rear of the shop, and other improvements made. Mr. Hesketh is keeping a neat, well managed shop.

Art Thompson was home from the University of Alberta for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Easterbrook were visitors to Gleichen last Sunday.

Fred Holmes came over from Turner Valley for the Thanksgiving holiday.

President Roosevelt's recovery scheme is in many difficult places, and trade recovery is not made up to expectations. But says Sir Josiah Stamp, "America might succeed in spite of herself because of her youth and vigor."

Canada's new loan is "going over big." There is no doubt the loan will be fully subscribed.

GRANITE EFFICIENCY

R. W. Beatty, president of the C. F. R., recently said at Winnipeg that "Farm management for many years to come will, I think, be an important factor in the success of farming operations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta."

Mr. Beatty also said that in former years conservation and settlement policies have lacked proper supervision.

Mr. Beatty's remarks contain a good deal of truth. There is, however, very little, if anything, about farming, took up land in the west. They were left pretty much to fend for themselves. Those who had farming experience were confronted with new problems in soil culture and the growing of crops. Doubtless there are many who still lack knowledge of the best farming practices to follow in their particular locality.

Farm management is certainly an important matter in the west. It is of special importance to the new settler. Efficient farm supervisory work would contribute in a large measure to the success of agriculture in the west.

SOUTHWARD BOUND

The Atlantic continent, bleak, ice-bound, crossed by rugged snow-capped chains, swept by terrific storms, is to be the scene of exploration for two separate expeditions this summer. (For summer, south of the equator comes when we in the north are having our winter).

One expedition is in command of Richard E. Byrd, noted Antarctic explorer; the other is in charge of Lincoln Ellsworth, and Sir Hubert Wilkins, both experienced in polar work.

Southward these men are going, southward past the Horn, ever south to the ice-bound shores of that continent which wraps itself around the lower end of our globe.

And what do they seek? These hardy men who have dared the dangers of the frigid south, and who are setting out to dare them again? Valuable minerals, gold, perhaps, or radium ore? They go to find what there is to find.

But it is not the hope of treasure that lures them. Rather it is a desire to seek the unknown, to fit the veil that hides the secrets of that unexplored land. The call of adventure, Chabot, Columbus, Magellan, the old Vikings—recall their deeds of daring when we read of Wilkins, Ellsworth, and Byrd sailing for the Antarctic, frigid, desolate, and distant, last stronghold of the earth's secrets.

No, the spirit of adventure is not dead.

Whether icy poisoning ever causes death is a question which doctors have not settled.

CLUNY NEWS

CLUNY, Oct. 14.—The telephone bridge sponsored by the Cluny W. I. was very successful, socially and financially. Nine tables were in play at the home of Mrs. W. R. McDonald, Mrs. R. W. Collins, and Mrs. Duncan Clark. High honors went to Mrs. House Sr. of Glendon, and Mrs. E. McDonald, of Cluny, both playing at Mrs. Clark's, and the consolation to Mrs. F. Thompson, of Cluny, playing at Mrs. McDonald's.

The W. I. Girls Club held a very successful meeting at the home of Mrs. Duncan Clark on Monday, Oct. 2. Dr. Clara Christie was guest speaker, her subject being "How the Keys Fit." The girls had invited the W. I. members to this meeting, and altogether there were 24 present. Mabel Jones and Elsiea Butty gave a couple of vocal numbers, accompanied by Alice Nowicki on the piano. Johanna Shetler gave a reading entitled "The Young Man Waited." Catherine Goldsmith gave a demonstration of vase painting, turning out some very pretty vases.

The dance sponsored by the girls' club on Friday, Oct. 6, was very well attended, resulting in a nice gain to be added to the treasury. Gus Larson's orchestra, was well received. Goose hunting has been the order of the day. Vernon Clark, some very fine geese being brought in by Scotty Keir, James Clark, W. Somerville, Earl Anson, Paul Kaufman, and Geo. Blair.

Mrs. Duncan Clark was visiting in Glendon, the guest of Mrs. P. Deshayes, at the week-end. Elizabeth Bushan came down from Calgary on Friday, returning on Monday.

LATHOM NEWS

LATHOM, Oct. 13.—The Lathom Community Club met at the home of Mrs. A. Smith on Thursday, Oct. 7. Seven members and five visitors present. One visitor joined, and one member left the club. After the meeting Mrs. Otto Holm entertained with a number of songs which were greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were then served by the hostess, during which a presentation of a purse was made by the vice president, Mrs. R. L. Lorne, to Mrs. Otto Holm, who is leaving for the United States. Mrs. Holm replied with a few words of thanks. She will be greatly missed in the district, as she has always been willing to help in any way possible for the good of the district.

A farewell party was held in the Community Hall Friday night for Mr. and Mrs. Otto Holm and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bate and family. Mr. and Mrs. Holm are going to the States, and Mr. and Mrs. Bate to B. C. Cards were played the first part of the evening. Miss Gladys Ross won lady's first prize and R. Phil the gentlemen's prize. Music for the dance was supplied by W. Erickson, Louis Osterberg, Mrs. Angus Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bate. Everyone reported a good time. The dance ended by singing "For Auld Lang Syne," and wishing the guests the best of luck.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. McDonald and Doreen, of Calgary, spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Ross and family.

Miss M. Hardy spent the holiday in Calgary with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Kokovelsky attended the funeral Saturday of Mr. Rubleben, at Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Otto Holm and Mr. Upton spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Z. Lore.

How about a 35-hour, five-day week for mothers, with time-and-a-half for cooking, Sunday dinners and ironing after 8 o'clock at night? Don't try to beat the brain-trainer level crossing is taking a sufficient toll without your help.

THE KID

By B. M. Cower

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

The Kid's name was Nate Wheeler, but back home on the Brazos they called him Tiger Eye because one eye was yellow—the one with which he sighted down a gun barrel. His father was "Miller" Reeves, but the boy did not want to kill. If he stayed home he would have to carry on his father's trade, so he headed his horse northward and encountered Nate Wheeler in Montana. Nate wore white and fired just as Tiger Eye did. The Kid didn't want to kill cats, only to cripple him, for his aim must have been wild, for Wheeler er dropped from his horse. Babe Garner came riding up. Wheeler was a "nester" he said, and had it coming to him. Tiger Eye rode to Wheeler's cabin to notify the dead man's widow. The Kid broke the news to Nate's widow and went out to bring in the body. After his return a gang of strangers rides up to see Wheeler. One of them is called Mrs. Wheeler by coupling her name with the stranger. The Kid shoots a hole in each of the ears of Pete Gosham, who buried the body, making his escape in the confusion. He lays in wait for the party and finally sees the men drive off with Wheeler's widow and child. The Kid learns the "nester's" plan to drop the Polo riders into a trap. He informs Garner, at the same time telling him it was Garner's shot with a rifle that killed Wheeler. Garner gets the boy a job riding the range for the Polo. Now go on with the story.

The Kid watched faithfully for a while, halting Peons behind boulders while he got off and focused the sights on this ranch and that ranch, and the tranquil range land in between. Quiet as Sunday afternoon in a Quaker village down there. The Kid swung the glasses farther into the coulee and along the trail to the gate, and up on to Wheeler's cabin. There he held them steady, until squawks shoving in the skin around his eyes, he squinted so. His lips felt angry as he watched. No wonder the valley was empty and no nesters were stirring! Hearing a funeral for Nate Wheeler, that was why. Yard full of wagons and yellow horses around the house, outside the house, not talking but just standing there, looking sour. Every one packing guns.

The Kid sharpened the focus a little, still gazing with his forehead wrinkled, trying to figure out what was wrong. Now the men were edging back from the door—plain as if he stood in the yard with them. He could see all they did; plain as looking at a play on the stage. Fetching the coffin out now. Just a board box with strap handles nailed on, nesters all stretching their necks like turkeys in a grain field, minding their manners but wanting to see it all. Something mighty strange though. And then the kid knew what it was. There weren't any women at that funeral. Nate Wheeler had a wife and baby, but they weren't there either. Just men not dressed up in their Sunday best but in their working clothes and overalls. Not shaved, either. Looked like they had just stopped by from their work. Plenty of guns though, and belts full of shells.

The kid stared for two seconds longer and took the field glasses from his eye. The grim gathering in the coulee receded into the slight movement of vague dots three miles and more away. The scene was gone, wiped out by the distance. Instead, the kid was staring down of the hill to a wagon that came rattling along down a long slope toward him. The driver was standing up, lashing the horses into a run with the long ends of the lines which he swung like a ball upon their backs. The wagon was jouncing along over hummocks and a woman with her bonnet off, and her hair flying straight, out behind her like the tail of a running horse, was hanging to the seat like grim death.

A man on horseback came tearing over the top of the little ridge. He started shooting but he didn't hit anything at all and the team came on, leaving the road at the driver's head and galloping straight down the slope.

The horseman spurred closer, still shooting, and at the third shot the driver made a sudden dive down on one of the horses, rolled off onto the ground and lay still. The team shied violently aside and snugged the front wheels in a big clump of buck brush which they tried to straddle. The kid jumped out and started running for the hill, the man taking after him, yelling at her to stop. But she didn't do it, though.

She was a girl, all right. The kid knew that as soon as she jumped out, she started running. She didn't run like a woman. This one legged it for the hill like a boy, her hair loose and waving out behind her like a yellow flag.

The fellow after the girl was trying to catch her before she got into among the rocks. Why he couldn't right in front of her, the kid might make it all right, especially when she went over that wash. If one long jump like a deer, and the fellow's horse balked and reared back on the edge. The man yelled again and pulled down with his gun and sent a bullet kicking up the dust right in front of her. That scared her so she stopped, not knowing which way to turn. The fellow did not shoot again but took down his rope and jumped off his horse.

The kid was waiting, with his blue left eye squinted nearly shut and his yellow right eye open and staring like a tiger. They kept coming closer and closer, and the kid's gun barrel jabbed forward and spat.

The man was widening his loop as he ran, but he dropped it as he jerked down to his side. He wore two guns, though. He started to draw a second gun with his left hand, but the kid fired another shot. The man gave a lurch and almost fell suddenly he sat down. Right where he was and leaned over right wise, acting kinda sick.

When the kid took another look at the girl she was lying on the ground all in a heap. She shot's father shot her or something. He watched her for a minute and saw she didn't move, so he went jumping down the bluff like a leonard howler. He was plumb sorry for her - d he hoped she wasn't hurt, but he hung back and didn't want to touch her or turn her over to see if she was dead. Her hair was all down over her face, and it was the longest yellowest hair he had ever seen in his life. She gave a deep gasping sigh and he stepped back a little farther. She had just fainted, she'd be coming to in a minute, and she wouldn't thank him for standing there gawping at her that-a-way.

The kid walked over and stood looking down at the fellow on the ground. The man gazed up at him like a trapped wolf. Both ears were swollen and red, a pucker round his mouth showing in the outstanding shell of each.

"When I plugged them ears," the kid, drawled, "consequently, I thought thought you was just plain drunk. I wish I'd known then you'd give half punch and half side-whisker."

The kid rode over to the old man who lay where he had fallen out of the wagon.

Old man, all right. Her old peppy, shot without a chance in the world to help himself. Didn't even have a gun on him. Old farmer, by the look of him. Bald headed and little and old.

The kid investigated his head injuries. Didn't seem to be any crack in the skull, but still you couldn't tell, with an old man like him.

The kid got up and looked in the wagon. A sack of flour was there, and a box of groceries, all jumbled together, and a demijohn lying on its side. The kid hoped it held whiskey, and reached a long arm for it. Shoosh enough—old peppy liked his eye open when he got up in the morning, and was taking home a jugful. The kid gave him an eye opener now, holding the old man's head up and tilting the jug to the baby lip plucked in together in the long beard. Then he poured a little in his palm and rubbed it on the baby lip in the thin grey hair, and after that he trickled a pungent stream on the bullet wound, front and back. The kid's padre's head opened and he stared vaguely up into the kid's face.

"Reckon you'll feel some better, huh?" the kid said, shyly. "Right smack crack on the head, but the whiskey'll keep down the swellin'." And when the old eyes still questioned, the kid finished the second argument. "Bullet dug flat a trail in you'll side, but it ain't deep, no now."

The old man opened his mouth and moved his jaw vacantly, trying to speak. His eyes never left the kid's face.

Where's Nellie? The old man was still dazed, but at least he could speak once more. The kid gave a sign of relief.

"Why, uh, she—" he turned and looked back toward the hill. "Right smack crack on the head, but she'll be back directly, uh."

The drink revived the old man a little, but he seemed to have only a taste of what had taken place. "Team run away," he mumbled, "surround me out. Where's Nellie? She was in the wagon when the team ran away."

She came, her long yellow hair pulled forward over her left shoulder. Her face was pale and her mouth drooped at the corners, and her eyes were glassy with terror, but the kid thought she was beautiful and he blushed a dark red as he tipped his hat to her.

"You hurt, Pa?" The girl sank on her knees beside the old man. "Pete shot you, didn't he?"

"Pete? Pete? What? The horses run away. Guess they throwed me out. Where was we goin' Nellie? Wasn't we goin' some place?"

A REMINDER!
A few years ago thousands of Alberta farmers petitioned and worked for the building of Alberta Pool Elevators. As a result the Pool system covers the Province in a close network.

The same reasons which inspired grain growers to ask for the service and protection of this co-operative system of elevators suggest that patronage should continue to be extended to them on a generous scale.
